

TRACEY WILKERSON, ANP-BC

Adult Nurse Practitioner

Tracey Wilkerson is a board certified Adult Nurse Practitioner with a specialty in primary care. She received a Masters of Science in Nursing in 2007 from Wayne State University. She has practiced in a variety of areas as a nurse practitioner including emergency room, urgent care and internal medicine. She is credentialed at St. Joseph Mercy Oakland in Pontiac where she practices as a hospitalist. Tracey has been a Registered Nurse since 1998, after receiving her Bachelors of Science in Nursing from Oakland University. She accumulated 17 years of clinical nursing experience in the acute and intensive care setting. Tracey takes pride in contributing to the nursing profession through teaching. She has served as adjunct faculty at Oakland Community College and a preceptor to Graduate Nursing students for area universities.

Tracey's scope of practice encompasses health promotion, disease prevention, diagnosis and treatment of common and complex problems. She is passionate about health education and health counseling. Tracey strives to develop a trusting and caring relationship with each of her patients and help with positive health choices. She is excited to be part of Clarkston Internal Medicine, and is enthusiastic to quality provide care to the community.

Tracey currently lives in Clarkston. In her free time she enjoys traveling, yoga and photography. Yet, most of all she enjoys spending time with her husband and two children.